Hello, I'm with RDD field services and we're conducting a short poll on fuel prices and transportation on behalf of an Oregon non-profit research project. We are not selling anything or affiliated with any political party. Are you 18 or older and reside in Oregon? (If not, could I reach you at a better time? - obtain time to call) (If probed by respondent about who's behind the poll, operator may state: The research team is called PolicyInteractive, and you may access information on the internet at PolicyInteractive.org. They are not selling anything or affiliated with any political party.) OK then, Then I'd like to begin.

Economists are saying that fuel prices might go a lot higher over the next few years. We're curious how high fuel prices would have to be before people feel they need to make major changes. I'll read some gas price levels, please tell me at what level you think you'd cut back fuel consumption (emphasize, read slowly) BY AT LEAST HALF, either by driving less or using a more efficient vehicle: (READ FROM LIST PROGRESSIVELY UNTIL YOU GET YOUR FIRST YES.
